

Clean Sport at the Front Line: Protecting the vulnerable

29 January 2019

Venue: Burleigh Court, Loughborough University

Price: £50

UK Anti-Doping is pleased to announce that booking is now open for the second Clean Sport at the Front Line forum. The forum will focus on evidence-based practice and how best to support and protect practitioners, with emphasis this year on those athletes that are most vulnerable and at risk of making a doping decision, as well as the role of the athlete support personnel in protecting athletes.

If you're involved in athlete support, sports research, a national governing body or a university programme and are committed to clean sport, then please book your place at the forum using the link provided.

On the day, you will hear from leading practitioners and researchers on the key topics facing clean sport, via engaging presentations, panel discussions and breakout sessions (all of which are detailed below).

If you are a member of the Sport and Exercise Nutrition register (SENr) or The British Association of Sport and Exercise Sciences (BASES), attendance at this event is recognised as continual professional development (CPD).

Welcome from Chair

Opening keynote

Clean Sport at the Front Line: One year on

A panel discussion bringing to life the previous year's topics, sharing what has changed and plans for the future. The panel will also introduce the forum's theme, how do we spot, manage and intervene with those who are more vulnerable to doping decisions.

Break

Moments of vulnerability

A facilitated discussion on the challenges that athletes face and when they may be most vulnerable to making a doping decision. How does this relate to your own sporting environment and how aware are others around you about these risks?

Before the tipping point: The principle of early intervention

Our collective job to protect sport means being proactive to minimise the risks of a doping decision within our own sporting environments. Discover the principle of early intervention and how it can help you to design and implement strategies to protect vulnerable athletes.

Lunch

Sport vs. Love Island: Young people and the next generation of athletes

Explore some of the current trends and issues young people involved in sport, fitness or physical activity face. What impact could this have on sport and, importantly, what is the impact on the next generation of athlete entering our sporting environment?

Research showcase

Researchers to present current projects to spark interest and debate.

Breakout sessions

Delegates to choose from a range of workshops focusing on hot topics within the clean sport landscape.

Keynote and close

A 360° view. A UKAD Athlete Committee member will share real life experiences of their journey from athlete to athlete support personnel and the anti-doping challenges faced in both roles.
